

Online software tools and expertise support

For organisations that choose to retain ownership of their Agile development change programme, Monetical's online business change consulting service and Agile Framework provides cost effective access to the right subject matter expertise. Each Agile development change programme providing unlimited access to four unrivalled sources of cost effective expertise. Programme owners have the capability to call upon this expertise at any stage to evaluate, execute and optimise the performance of their software and I.T. projects.

Online business change software application

Tailored consulting programme incorporating the Agile development change framework, benchmarking audits and analytical tools. Guided by a "light touch" workflow with integrated reporting of current capabilities and preconfigured corrective measures and actions, each change programme owners can evaluate and optimise their own Agile development change programme without external support. Programme teams retain ownership of their performance evaluation and optimisation knowledge whether working independently or allowing an external consultant to work more collaboratively with their internal teams.

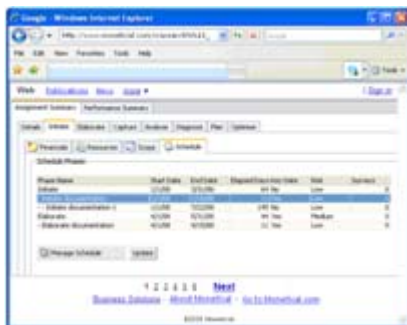

Figure 1 – Online change programme interface

Expertise from a dedicated knowledge database

An extensively populated database, containing subject matter material covering all aspects of enterprise and operational change programme activities, provide real-time rapid and accurate access to qualified knowledge. This expertise is exploited to help the planning, execution or optimisation stages of the business change programme.

Figure 2 – Online Agile expertise repository

Expertise through community discussion

Access a series of discussion groups with other professionals to share best practices and experience on the key factors influencing software and I.T. projects that have adopted Agile methodology.

Figure 3 – Online Agile discussion forums

Your dedicated team of researchers

Finally, to help your Agile development change programme deal effectively with the most challenging aspects of change, submit research questions to the dedicated research team who will exploit a vast network of experts to give you unbiased and independent answers.